Advice from professionals is great

"Technology and the profession continues to grow and expand. You are the resource for the lives you touch. To be the most effective and greatest resource for each patient is to keep your knowledge fresh. Even if your state doesn't require continuing education to renew your license, please challenge yourself to obtain the specialty certification in your area or areas of specialization. When you do, your profession transforms into your passion. When it becomes your passion, the term 'job' transitions to 'joy'."

- Jacqueline Cole, Board of Directors,
American Association of Managed Care Nurses (AAMCN)

Professional Associations

- American Nurses Association (ANA)
- American Red Cross
- National Student Nurses Association (NSNA)
- National Coalition of Ethnic Minority Nurse Associations (NCEMNA)

Professional practicing nurses are responsible for maintaining accurate and detailed report, administering medications to patients while monitoring patients for reactions or side effects, recording patients' medical information/vital signs, and consulting and coordinating with healthcare team members to assess, plan, implement, or evaluate patient care plans.
