IV. New Business

1. Reviewing an email written to the elections commissioner regarding the disqualification of a presidential ticket owing to a lack of VP. The future of your party is hoping to convert the rejected candidate to their side.
2. Examining the election code to check if the candidate is eligible to change parties.
3. Checking the candidate's qualifications, Santana Way, and ensuring he meets them.
4. The board is perplexed as to what the party means by switching and what the implications are for the present candidate for that position.
5. Grace Sancruzado enters the meeting late
6. Board members discuss whether candidates should be permitted to switch after being disqualified. The purpose of this meeting is to enlighten the party that sent the query about the current electoral rules and conduct. We decided to provide the information required for the party to make the best option for their needs.
7. An email was curated finalizing the explanation that parties should check the election code to select a qualified candidate.
8. There were candidate positions that no one applied for. The board decided to reopen the application to allow more opportunities for applicants (only for low-div BBC and Nursing).
